Charles H. Buck of Gilbertville visited his son, Guy Buck, one day recently.

The Butter Kist Popcorn machine with the peanut roaster attachment in Fletch-er's window attracts attention. The shel-ter placed in a receptacle on the machine top, passes down into a gas heated revol-ving popper. As the kernels expand, they drop out and are carried through a nar-row space where a disk covered with mel-rose butter does the rest. Their product is now ready for the moisture proof wrapper, completing a journey unaided by human hands. An electric motor fur-nishes the power, and heat comes from a gas flame supplied through a thread like pipe from a generator in the cellar.

Darius Sylvester Sanborn

Darius Sanborn, widely known throughout western Maine and a substantial citizen of Norway, died at his home on lower Main street Friday, October 27, after a long illness incident to advanced age, being 74 years, 3 months and 8 days old.

He was born in Baldwin, July 19, 1842, the son of Albert and Lovisa (Sawyer) Sanborn. As a boy he moved with his parents to Oxford, and later to Norway. Before the close of the Civil War he served in the Coast Guards and was stationed at Fort Popgham and Kittery for several months.

After the close of the rebellion he went to the Pacific coast and remained there until the early 70's, when he returned to town of his adoption, and began the manufacture of shovel handles at the Falls, being in company with his father and older brother. This partnership continued until about 1891.

Mr. Sanborn, though physically handicapped by the loss of one leg, was a man of affairs and deeply interested in all things which would be for the betterment of the town. He served fourteen terms as chairman of the selectmen, and during that period experienced considerable political unpleasantness because of his aggressive ideals. Politically he was a Democrat, and worked faithfully for the party so long as its principals squared with his ideas of right and justice. He was a member of the Oxford Lodge No 18 F and A. M.

Mr. Sanborn married Adelaide Wilson of Oxford, April 18, 1872. She died February 2, 1913.

Four children survive: Albert L. of this town, a traveling salesman; Walter L., a newspaper man of Lansdale, Penn.; Agnes E., a teacher in Newton, Mass.; and George L., Register of Deeds for Oxford County.

Two brothers and a sister are still living. Roswell Sanborn of Lynn, Mass., William H. Sanborn of Norway and Mrs. Mary Stevens of this town.

Services were held in his late home Monday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. Robert J. Bruce of the Congregational church officiating. Interment in Pine Grove Cemetery.

Henry Siegel and His Trick Circus Horse

Henry Siegel and his horse pulled off a comedy movie play late Saturday afternoon that will send Charlie Chaplin to the infant class.

Henry had his junk business outfit at Elmer Haggett's blacksmith shop and repairs. The horse became frightened, so started on the jump without the wag-on, up Cottage street. Of course our general interest followed in hot pursuit, or as fast as his short legs would permit. (Witnesses testify that he did the quarter in 55 feet.)

The frightened horse reached Main street and dashed across the road, steer-ing directly for Z. L. Merchant's large plate glass windows. When his feet land-ed on the smooth cement sidewalk, he slipped and fell on his side. Momentum carried the fifteen hundred pounds of horse flesh through a narrow sidewalk window in the Brown & Buck Company's store. Sash and glass rattled into the basement, but the horse's legs were stuck fast in the opening. A crowd gathered quickly and soon had the prisoner.

At this stage of the game (the last half of the act) Henry had the horse in a hysterical condition, hoping to save the game. In seven languages the actor tried to explain how the "comedy business" started but up to date the cause is not exactly clear. Anyway the horse came out of the rumpus with but a few cuts and nobody was injured.

First Assessor George W. Holmes and Second Assessor Ray Eastman were scouting our streets Tuesday fixing up the new house numbers. We all appreciate this move and the new free mail delivery is one step nearer.

How About a Town Basket Ball Team?

Many of the local sports are getting restless as the long cold evenings begin to materialize and want to start some-thing. We have plenty of "red blood" in town, but little opportunity to ex-ercise that talent. A bang-up basket ball team of local performers would live things up a bit and give the people something agreeable to talk about.

L. M. Carroll of the Carroll Jellerson Shoe Company is the "big chief" of this progressive movement, and will play his side of the game to finish provided others follow.

In interview Mr. Carroll admits that we need "social ginger" during the winter months. "A fast basket ball outfit made up from our young gamesters, would bring into town semi-professional teams of class, thus create an interest for good, clean sport and keep all con-tented." He is confident that a brace of winners could be picked from Norway and Paris if taken in hand by a proper coach. Frank Flynn, who led Spring-vale to the top notch, and is considered one of the best professional basket ball wizards in the country, might be engaged as suggested by Mr. Carroll.

Now boys, talk this matter up and let's get busy before the season breaks. A meeting will undoubtedly be called if there is found sufficient sporting blood for a "get away."

Norway Grange

Norway Grange celebrated its forty-second anniversary of October 28th. An all day meeting was held with the State Master W. J. Thompson and his wife as guests of honor.

The hall was prettily decorated with flags and on each officer's desk was placed a bouquet of Autumn leaves and red berries. This work was done by Sisters Lella Watson and Virginia Murdoch.

Meeting was called to order and after the opening exercises a short business session was held followed by a song by the grange chorus. A recess was declared and all repaired to the dining hall, where a "grange" dinner was enjoyed.

At one o'clock sharp, Worthing Master Richardson again called to order. A short program was given, at an open session, which included a song, "Rowing Against the Tide," by Grange chorus; a violin solo by Novelle Brown and Eva Jackson at the piano. A historical sketch of the Norway Grange by Worthing Master Rich-ardson, which was very interesting. Azola Pike gave "The Whispering of the Pines," an especially requested piano selection.

An anniversary poem of much merit was written and read by Annie (Frost) Goodwin. An anniversary song, with original words was sung by Eva Jackson and was much appreciated.

Worthing Master Richardson then intro-duced Worthing State Master W. J. Thompson, who was greeted with a hearty applause. The talk given was in-structive, constructive and extremely in-teresting, new points of interest being introduced and the importance of grange work strongly emphasized.

A violin selection was given by Brother A. M. Dunham, piano, Eva Jackson. Sister Thompson was called upon and she responded with a very interesting, cordial talk, a piano selection was given by Ida Merrill.

A vote of thanks was extended Brother Thompson and wife for the pleasure of their presence and invitation extended to them to "come again."

A short recess was taken in honor of the departing guests. Work was resumed in closed session and Adelaide Young, Eva Jackson and Annie Goodwin were appointed to look after additional stage conveniences; other business being at-tended to. Meeting closed in form. We give below the Anniversary Poem:

They met in the golden autumn time,
In eighteen seventy-two, when
In little schoolhouse at Norway Lake,
On Pennessessee's shore,
With stanch brave hearts, and willing hands,
With noble task before them,
Of binding the ties of brotherhood,
With friendship's golden chain,
Over forty years have now been spent,
Since our beloved association met,
To organize this fraternity,
Whose cause we must never forget.
C. W. Ryerson was first master,
Guided the ship for eight long years,
For that striving, little band,
And the high and noble name of Wit,
Next came the noble name of Wm. F. Jones,
With N. W. Miller, Roberts and Smith,
Also Brown and Bicknell,
For twelve years Brother Roberts the office held,
With spirit and courage grace,
And when he chose to leave the chair,
'Twas hard to fill his place.
The records show he served us
The longest of anyone;
And the high and noble name of Wm. F. Jones,
Showed how work was done.
Now Brother Richardson the office holds,
And does his duty well,
We hope to keep him till his death,
That, only time can tell.
For five months they met in the little school-house,
And chose their officers there.
'Twas at this place that Brother Ryerson
Was voted into the chair.
On March thirty-first, in seventy-five,
They met in the Freeman Hall,
The open air was large enough
To accommodate their twenty-seven,
The year of eighteen seventy-seven,
Found them assembled in a new place;
And the home-like air of the Ryerson Hall
Brought many a tear to the eye.
The meetings were held in the last named place
For a score and a half of years,
Until their smiles carried the day,
And a new place was found.
To buy a lot and build a hall,
That could not be excelled;
Was talked and planned and carried out
With courage undimmed.
Today we stand four hundred strong,
With strength and hope imbued,
And in our hearts do not forget
Our ancestors' fond aid.
Of the twenty-eight who the charter signed
There are only three remaining,
Again and again the Bepetters
Has come our loved ones claiming.
Brothers Ryerson, Miller and Tubbs,
Are mortals of this sphere,
Brother Ryerson being the eldest,
Has turned his foot to the year.
And to the dear ones passed beyond,
Over the great "Divide,"
These humble verses are dedicated,
With deepest respect and pride.
Only three of the charter members are living, Sarah Rice Millett, Charles A.
Ryerson, and Elhanan Tubbs. Brother
Tubbs was present.

Alta Hall had a chaperon from the Halloween party late Tuesday night.
While walking up Beal street to her home a kindly disposed animal jogged along a short distance ahead. This affectionate little animal tried to get away from her company by crawling through Albert Dyer's front yard fence, but could not make it work. They continued on as before until both reached her father's open gate. Her friend took the hind and went into the yard and followed the path to the door. Miss Hall then got a good square look at her escort and learned his name-Skunk.

Mrs. Ida Page, who has been working for Mrs. A. P. Chandler at Round Pond, has finished work there and is to be employed in the shoe factory.

The eagle measured nine feet from tip to tip.

The Last of an Old Landmark

Small and Ingalls of Bar Harbor are the contractors clearing out the cellar wall of what was once "The Elms" house. Frank H. Beck, the owner of the property, is forcing the work, expecting to complete the foundation before the ground freezes.

No definite plans have been made concerning the whole construction. We are reasonably sure a 60x60 basement having cement block walls, and whatever sort of building is erected on that, will include a new Post Office.

The passing of this old landmark for a modern structure, carries the mind back to the early days of 1800 when the first wall was put in place. Upon those rough stones was built a modest dwelling which seemed destined to become good material for the future historian.

Joshua Smith opened the early chapter of the serial story that has run for 105 years. He came to the settlement from Frost Hill in 1803; purchased this property and after making repairs, opened the house as a tavern. Here good cheer reigned supreme and its hospitality was known for miles around. Many an old cronie toasted his shins before a huge fire place in the bar room, and spun yarns of adventure far into the winter's night.

A stock company, often called the "twelve apostles" took over the business in 1846. They added a third story and in other ways improved the tavern. At this period a sign "The Elms" was displayed; the name suggesting itself from trees bordering the Main street.

Various landlords held sway over the destinies of the weary overland traveller. James N. Hall, S. T. Dutton, Otis True and Joseph Carpenter were popular with the public during their time.

In 1866 Capt. William Whitmarsh and William P. Jordan secured the premises; adding still more to the exterior and greatly improving the arrangement of rooms. Two years later Mr. Jordan retired, leaving Captain and Mrs. Whitmarsh in full charge of a hotel doing capacity business. For nearly fifty years this hostelry, under their able management, advanced with the age and became favorably known far and wide for its genuine cordiality.

The Elms hotel is now but a memory. What fascinating tales might be recited if the old hand hued timbers now piled in the vacant lot, could but speak. Stories of great men from other generations who shared the hospitality of the inn, or of the unfortunate outcast humbly begging for shelter from the storm.

But the curtain falls on this last act.

two stanzas from Longfellow's "The Old, Clock on the Stairs" seems appropriate:

In that mansion used to be,
Free-headed Hospitality,
His great fires up the chimney roared,
The stranger feasted at his board.
But like the skeleton at the feast,
That warning timepiece never ceased.
Forever—never!
Never—never!

RHEUMATISM AFTER HIS DAY'S OUTING

Hunting Trip On a Wet Day Brings Painful Results.

Once upon a time Charles Mullen, of Philadelphia, went gunning. It was a dismal rainy day, and long exposure to cold and wet brought on a severe attack of rheumatism. He was confined to his home.

A friend recommended Sloan's Liniment, citing his own case as evidence of its effectiveness. Mullen bought a bottle and applied it to his aching limbs. Soon improvement was noticed and he was able to return to business.

Mr. Mullen writes: "Since that experience I have never been without Sloan's Liniment in the medicine chest." You will find it soothes bruises, sprains, toothache and relieves lame back, neuralgia, in fact all external pains. At all druggists, 25c., 50c. and $1.00 a bottle.

A VISIT FROM THE WEST TO THE HOMETOWN

Marietta, Ohio, Oct. 20, 1916

Dear Advertiser:

On August first I left this city bound for my old haunts in Maine, seemingly a long way off but really only a thousand miles distant, or measured by time, including six hours taken up by stops, but thirty hours. I started on the Pennsylvania line and went straight north across the great state of Ohio to Cleveland, nearly two hundred miles distant. There after a two hours' wait, I boarded a sleeper on the New York Central and went through to Boston without change of cars. I retired about ten and so soundly did I sleep that I did not awake until daylight the next morning.

I arrived in Boston about ten A. M. at what is called the South Station, and leaving the train I followed the direction given by a policeman and climbed the long flight of stairs up to the elevated car station and boarding a car was soon landed at the North Station on the opposite side of the city. Here in due time I went aboard a Boston and Maine train and arrived in Portland about 4 P. M. Two hours later on a Maine Central train I was speeding towards Fryeburg where I arrived about dark.

I found my nephew, Henry Andrews, and wife and daughter Calista with her husband, Willis Farrington, waiting for me with their auto, and a half hour later was safely landed at the fine Andrews' mansion and made to feel at home.

What a change in the mode of traveling from what it was 50 years ago. When I went west in 1867 it took me five days by train and one by stage to reach Des Moines, Iowa from Lovell, Maine via Paris. My first ride in a sleeping car was in 1870 from Ogdensburg, N. Y. to Montpelier, Vermont, on what was then the western end of the Portland and Ogdensburg railroad. The bunks were me solid, a double row one above the other, on each side of the car, very much like the bunks in a logging camp, and not much more comfortable. After I left the car I felt for my pocket book and it was gone. Fortunately for me there was but a few dollars in it. A so called sick man occupied the berth opposite, and left in the night. He probably figured that he needed the money more than I to pay his doctor's bill.

In 1871 I crossed the city of Boston on foot, to the Old Colony Depot and went out to Neponset to visit my sister, Sarah A. Savitt. The passenger transfer across the city was by horse and carriage. Now the Subway runs safe and elevated cars make travel through Boston's crooked and crowded streets comparatively safe and rapid.

On this, my seventh visit to Maine, as on all my former visits, I did not go for the satisfaction of picking and eating blueberries, for I could go for the pleasure and excitement of travel. They were simply incidentals. But I had a longing to visit once more the old home land and the remaining friends of my childhood's happy days. The two months that I spent there were months of joy and pleasure. I traveled mostly by the popular Foot and Walker line, and I called upon or visited with at least sixty families in the towns of Conway, Chatham, Fryeburg, Lovell and Bridgton, all of whom were old time friends.

On my return to Ohio I visited friends in Portland one day, in Hartford, Conn. three days, in New York City three days, and four days in and near Washington and took in many of the sights of those interesting and historic cities.

It seems strange to me that my letters in the Advertiser should be of interest to those with whom I was not acquainted, but I found them letters of instruction to me, and was often told both by friends and strangers how interested they were in reading them, and that they hoped I would continue to send them in. So with the editor's consent, I will endeavor from time to time in a friendly way to jot down items that may be of interest in connection with my house to house canvass in Old Oxford County and send them in for the editor's inspection. Time to me is not money, and the time spent at my desk will help in a pleasant way to pass some of the long winter days that will soon be here.

In this connection I am sending for insertion in the Advertiser the obituary notice of Mrs. Lizzie Hannah Powers Fitch, cut from the East San Diego Powers Press and dated September 1st:

The funeral services of Mrs. Elizabeth Fitch, wife of city trustee Edwin P. Fitch, who died at her home in this city early Saturday morning, were conducted from the chapel of Bradley & Woolman, San Diego, with the Rev. C. Howard Grube officiating, assisted by the Rev. Louis G. Spring. The services were attended by a large number of friends and many beautiful floral offerings were presented.

"Mrs. Fitch who had been ailing a short time, was found dead in bed on Saturday morning. According to members of the family, she was indisposed on Friday, and was given some attention about 2 a. m. She was sleeping peacefully soon afterwards, but death had come before members of the family came to her bedside again.

"Mrs. Fitch was a resident of San Diego for many years and leaves a large number of friends to mourn their loss. She was a member of the local Presbyterian church and always took an active part in the Christian work.

"She was a native of Maine and aged 75 years. Besides her husband, she is survived by the following daughter and sons: Maud E. Fitch, of this city, Fred C. Fitch, Isabel, S. D.; George W. Fitch, Yorkton, S. D.; and John A. Fitch of New York City.

Mrs. Fitch was born in Sweden 75 years ago. The old Powers farm house near Sweden Corner is still standing and well preserved and in the nearby cemetery are buried her father, mother, a brother and three sisters. About 1850 the family moved to a farm at South Bridgton, where they resided until after Mr. Powers' death, and the close of the Civil War, when they sold the farm and moved to Wisconsin; and later to South Dakota, and still later to San Diego.

Mrs. Fitch writing to his sister, Mrs. Sarah Berry, of South Bridgton, used in this expression "Fifty years as wife and sweetheart" and I think that I never knew a couple that lived in more contented happy life.

Viola P. Fessenden, a sister of Mrs. Fitch, lives with her married daughter in San Diego, a near neighbor to the Fitch family and a brother, Abraham Andrews Powers lives at Wasta, S. D., where he owns a large alfalfa and stock ranch.

I would also like to make mention of a former Lovell girl, Mrs. Esther Andrews Cooper, who died at her home near Douglass, Wyoming, a little over a year ago. She was born at Lovell Center, Maine in 1832 and lived there until her marriage to Andrew Cooper in 1853, in 1864 they moved to a farm at Exira, Iowa, and were the first of the Lovell Center colony to settle there. In 1875 Jacob Andrews and family and his father, Isaac Andrews, and Moses McKen came and soon after Samuel Ayers and wife arrived. Mrs. Ayers was a sister of Jacob Andrews, also Isaac Andrews. All these lived on adjoining farms and made a pleasant little colony.

In 1867 H. W. Stearns and I arrived. Isaac Andrews was a birth sufferer from phthisis and I bought his 90 acre farm and he went back to his family at Chatham, N. H., where he died a year or two later. About 1875 came Stephen, Sewell and Ella Stearns and their mother and not long after a brother of Jacob's, Wm. Andrews and family, came. The Coopers moved to Wyoming, about 25 years ago. Mr. Cooper is still living with his daughter Nellie at Douglass, Wyo., and is hale and hearty though I think in his 85th year. There are two daughters, both married and living in Montana.

Mrs. Cooper was a noble Christian woman. Her home was her castle, and the world was made better by her life's journey through it.

The season's crops in Ohio have been good, prosperity abounds on every hand. Something new for a Democratic administration and the political pot is boiling hard, both on state and national issues. As each of the two great political parties, in Ohio claim a land slide of around a hundred thousand majority for Hughes or Wilson, one side or the other is bound to be grievously disappointed when the votes are counted on election night. As a Republican I hope that it will be yet another fellow that gets licked and that the Democrats will prove as poor guessers as they did over the state election in Maine last September.

Yours truly,
Joseph Andrews.

HARRISON

Observed 80th Birthday
Sunday, October 29th, Friends and relatives from Norway and Lewiston visited William Sumner Pease, the patriarch of Summit Hill in Harrison, and helped him to properly observe his 80th birthday.

Ellen P. Blake, who makes her home with her uncle prepared a bountiful dinner, and all greatly enjoyed the welcome and hospitality of the host and hostess. After dinner gospel hymns were sung and while among the visitors were musicians of some ability, all were amazed at the remarkable tenor voice of "Cousin Sumner," as he is lovingly called. For a man who has reached four score years, such singing was simply wonderful. For those who are accustomed to hear the off-key or nasal tenor of the modern variety singer, such a tone and volume and quality was astounding. As pure and as clear and as abundant as the waters from the celebrated spring of the hill on which he lives, his singing was a joy and a revelation to all who were privileged to hear it.

After the singing there was a visit to the hill top. With the full Presidential Range of the White Mountains rising over the west and the Oxford Hills to the north and east, with this wonderful panorama spread out before one, heaven seemed nearer than it has in some other places and on some other occasions. Here the farewells were said, and the Lewiston relatives and friends returned by auto by way of Naples and Poland Springs.

The following were present: William Sumner Pease and Ellen P. Blake, of Harrison; Leon M. Longley and wife and son, Mrs. Greenleaf G. Wagg, Albert L. Murch and wife and two children and Lydia J. Hill from Lewiston.

DENMARK

Hallowe'en Celebration.

The Hallowe'en Party Dance and Harvest Lunch given under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Emery at L. O. O. F. Hall Friday night, Oct. 29, was a great success. The hall was crowded. Berry's orchestra furnished music and the proceeds from the lunch went to the library fund.

Gordon Richardson and Mrs. Georgie Wentworth lead the grand march. The hall was decorated very appropriate for Hallowe'en with streamers of black and orange, black cats, witches, even a spider's web and witches' kettle were there.

There was something to entertain between each dance. The peanut hunt for the children was first. They formed on the dance floor and marched down the center, around the side, up the stairs to the big cloak room where they were to hunt there. Hazel Ingalls and Frances Berry led the peanut march.

Everyone enjoyed the ghost story told by Mrs. Emery, with only the colored lights lit and acted out by silent actors on the stage.

Bobbing for apples was tried by young and old and every one had a good laugh over the doughnut contest. There was a lighted candle and the three saucers for the young folks who wished to know about their future marriage. Everyone enjoyed themselves and most all stayed until the dancing stopped at 2 o'clock.

Mose Wentworth of East Denmark passed away Sunday night after a long sickness. He leaves a wife and two sons by his second marriage, Maynard Wentworth of Denmark, Corner and Carol who lives at home.

Oakland
The Sensible Six

Announcement

Bigger, better and more refined is the new model 34—Oakland Sensible Six.

The wheelbase is longer. The body is bigger and more comfortable. Skillful designing has refined the valve-in-head motor into one of high speed type, which without any increase in size develops full forty-one horse power at 2500 r. p. m. Riding quality is greatly improved by the use of long, semi-elliptic springs and the use of larger tires.

Power and beauty and roominess are added in generous measure, yet the new Sensible Six weighs but little more than its predecessor. Refinements have conserved and emphasized its lightness with great strength—its fuel and tire economy—its more than sensible operating cost.

And the price of the new Oakland Six, $845, is also sensible—doubly so when measured against the betterments and improvements which add tremendously to the comfort, convenience, and value of the car.

Oakland Eight $1585—For those who want a big seven-passenger car, Oakland Eight offers the utmost in speed, pulling power and luxurious riding comfort. It has that look of style and distinction—and its lightness and efficiency make its maintenance unusually economical for a car so large and luxurious.

Hallowe'en Party

Elaine Hunt entertained about thirty of her friends at a Hallowe'en party at Mrs. C. W. Chick's Tuesday evening, Oct. 30th. They came in masks and costumes and presented rather a hideous appearance. Each was introduced to the goblin who kindly invited her to be seated beside him, but much to her surprise the seat had no bottom, and they suddenly found themselves sitting on the floor.

There were black cats, ghosts and goblins in evidence, and the room was decorated in Hallowe'en style, fireplace and pumpkins presenting rather a ghastly appearance.

David Klain won first prize and Theodore Hunt the booby in the guessing contest, to determine how many seeds a pumpkin contained. The first prize was a black cat with diamond eyes, the booby prize, a Hallowe'en pumpkin filled with candy.

After playing games until ten o'clock they were invited into the dining room, which was decorated with streamers of orange and black crepe paper reaching to the chandeliers, from a large pumpkin in the center of the table. They were served with punch, cake decorated with wonderful faces, fancy crackers, candy and peanuts. They went home saying they had spent a delightful evening.

Veranda Club Notes.

The Veranda Club met at the home of Mrs. Cordelia McKay, "Cummings Place," Thursday afternoon, Oct. 26, where a very pleasant afternoon was enjoyed. The meeting was conducted by the president, E. M. L. Fogg, who appointed the following committees for the year:

Auditing Com.—Madeline Libby, Virgil Kilgore, Emma Swan.
Dish Com.—Clara J. Jordan.
Music Com.—Virgil Kilgore, Nellie Merrill.
Trustee—Virgil Murdock.
Press reporter—Alta Sheen.

The Club has already several pupils engaged to make for ladies of the town. The next meeting, which will be held with Mrs. Martha Rowe, Steep Falls, on Thursday afternoon, Nov. 9th, plans will be made to complete the work engaged.

At 2:30 P. M. After the business meeting the hostess served assorted cake and coffee.

Robert Schenk of the Lone Pine Farm, Pike's Hill is shipping a large number of his spring chickens to the Boston market this week. His best birds of the Lone Pine strain will be kept during the winter for eggs and mating in the spring.

Mildred Morgan and Beatrice Drake were visiting relatives at Bethel during the school recess.

Mrs. Harold Bailey is canvassing the town and showing her fine needlework.

Chas. H. Pike is having the front steps of his house smoothed up. J. H. Linscott of Oxford is doing the work.

Henry Hosmer has been working several days this week in the Bailey Ford Repair shop.

Marion Gibson returned this week from a short visit with her cousin, Mrs. Burdett Hinman at Berlin, N. H.

George Davee has retired from Ed. Thomas' Cobbler Shop and is cutting shoes in the Carroll, Jellerson factory. Harold Thomas has taken up the trade and works afterwards.

Mr. an Mrs. Leon E. Fox have left the local telephone exchange and are at Rumford. Harrington Flint takes their place here and Harold Thomas cares for the switch board nights.

Joe Crocker has opened what the boys irreverently term a "hot dog factory" in the rear of Harry Lane's tailoring rooms. Joe does a thriving business each evening with Guy Harriman as assistant.

The N. H. S. basketball squad started their work Wednesday. Peter Klain has been elected captain and Raymond Evers manager. An interesting schedule is being arranged for the coming season.

Something of a "rough house" occurred at Gorham, Saturday, when the Norway High eleven played the whole Gorham High school and their village supporters. Our boys were beaten by a score 13-0, which in its self is not a defeat. There are no "ifs" or other alibi in their stories of the game. Trust a plain statement of side line spectators crowding the field and creating a din for the purpose of confusing all called signals.

BIG BARN DOOR SKETCHES

Purely Personal and Mostly About Myself and Early Career.

I settled my Norway affairs and soon shook the dust of town from my feet. I walked over Pike Hill and came to the Harrison road at Dry Mills. The road from Sol. H. Millett's farm to the mill has since been discontinued and the bridge and mill has gone. Both were in good shape then.

I met Jacob Bradbury on the road and talked with him. He looked to be a very old man, yet was only 74. He lived seven years longer and died when 81. He was grandfather of the Surgeon-Major Bial F. Bradbury, now at Laredo, Texas, and had brought up a big family of children on his Pike Hill farm, which is now owned by G. A. and G. W. Dunn. He was the father of the late Dr. O. N. Bradbury, known to our readers a few years ago as the author of "Norway in the Forties."

Father and mother overtook me and I road out of the state and into New Hampshire and remained there nine years. Five of them was spent in New Hampshire and four in Lacombe, but Meredith Center was the home base and has ever remained so even to this day.

The real work of life commenced at New Hampton. I attended the fall term and boarded in the Club at an expense of $1.85 per week, "Saturdays and Sundays out."

Geo. A. Glidden of the Center was my room mate and he was anxious I should become a member of the Social Fraternity, which had been founded many years before by Long John Wentworth of Chicago, when attending school here as a social and literary club for the boys of the less wealthy families. Long John in later years rather overdid it in his liberality towards the association and his "poor boys' asylum" came into the control of the more wealthy class of students.

My chum had previously attended school here and was a member of this society and wished me to join and swell the numbers. There was great rivalry between the societies in getting new members. I chose the Literary Adelpi and wore a red necktie and marched under the banner of the red star rather than the blue shield and pale blue neck rigging.

Of course Glidden was disappointed and called me a fool or the equivalent. The real reason for joining the Adelpi was that they held their meetings Thursday evenings and the other society Friday evenings. My home was only seven miles away and I intended going to Sunday night and I wanted to belong to a society in which I could take part in the meetings. The society spirit at times ran high during the years I was here and was shown by the size and color of necktie worn.

One term I recall the Dolphins wore red flannel neckties two feet long and outshone and outnumbered the blue shirt neckwear of their rivals. I was a leader in this foolishness and it seemed real to me then as it has to many a boy since.

I soon got into real trouble. My chum had charge of the Merchandise Emporium and during a big raid on merchandise got into this possession about all the money of the College Bank. He had it in a tin box and took it to his room for safe keeping. There was no vault or iron safe in the college for that purpose. Glidden put the tin box, with several hundred thousand dollars of Business College Money in his trunk and carefully locked it up. To play a joke on him, I realized the consequences. I got the money and hid it in the straw of the bed on which we slept. The next day when the loss was discovered great consternation prevailed in the business department of the institution and the would stay so until the thief was apprehended and the money returned. Glidden told his story and I was interviewed, cooperating him, as I saw the money put into the trunk as did another boy named Foss, who had the opportunity to see him in the room, but claimed he did not see or know what was taken with it.

Glidden and Foss previously had trouble and he naturally felt Foss to be the guilty one and that he did it to humiliate him and square accounts.

A Faculty Meeting was called and Foss was given the third degree and threatened with expulsion if he didn't own up and return the funds. Foss firmly stuck to the truth, but failed to convince them of his innocence.

I was seriously frightened and cast about to find some way to get the money back without being implicated. It was easily planned but who could I get to do it?

I should have gone directly to Prof. Rand, who had charge of the boys in Randall Hall giving him the money with my story and establishing Foss' innocence. I thought, however, it safer and surely more to my inclination to do it in a different way. I could get someone to help me. Failing in this I could go to Mr. Rand as the last resort.

George Tufts, who roomed in Randall Hall, was let into the secret and cheerfully volunteered his assistance. He was to disguise himself to look like Prof. Rand and come to my room in the Club House the next evening between 8 and 9:30 with the money, rap on the door, leaving the bundle and get out of the building, if possible, unseen. I was to be in the room with Glidden as I should be. It worked all right. He was invited to "Come in," but as he didn't come, Glidden opened the door, found the package and made a grand rush to discover who brought it, but was too late.

Next day's investigation showed that Mr. Rand left Randall Hall at about 9:20 that evening. This Mr. Rand denied. Thus it ended. Business was promptly resumed and the famous Department and Foss seemed to enjoy the notoriety. Tufts and I looked solemn and kept silent as to "who got Glidden's money."

Some years later when I was a member of the Faculty and a case of discipline came up in regard to a boy being considered the "Old Man" (Prof. Meserve) looked over to me and with a sly twinkle in his eye said: "The manner of returning Glidden's stolen money led me to believe Foss was innocent. He didn't have brains enough to do it that way. What do you say?" I am not sure he was being serious, but I am sure he was being kind and continued my plea for leniency in the case under discussion.

I was caught red handed "hooking" apples in Col. Lewis' orchard. I had my pockets filled with rather a poor quality of fruit and was about to leave when a tall, well proportioned man stepped into sight and said: "You are not to be caught here. These apples you have are not fit to eat, you'll find some better ones over there," pointing to a tree some rods away. I hesitated for the instant and he said "You are welcome to them."

I took him to be the owner of the orchard and threw those I had on the ground and did as directed. They were splendid apples, Porters if I remember right. I never went into the orchard again without permission during my stay in town.

This Mr. Lewis afterwards became my partner in business. This was our first meeting. I called his attention to it years after but he did not remember it as stealing apples from his trees was of too common occurrence for him to recall. Everything he had was almost common property for the students.

He is buried in the Lewis family lot near the orchard and when I approach the grave I take off my hat for here lies the man who discovered me, backed me with his money and gave me a start in the world.

Maybe I've told enough of the bad that befell me this first term and will pass over chicken raids and the breaking of many rules and regulations and speak of "an honor" that came my way. I got the appointment as editor of the Nautilus for the Dolphins' first meeting next term. This was seldom conferred to a first-term, but somehow somebody got an idea I could write probably because I had worked in a printing office where newspapers were printed. I accepted it and said if I didn't return the next term—my coming back was doubtful on account of finance—I would send the paper to the President of the Society and he could get someone to read it in my stead. I prepared the paper according to my notion of what a society paper should be. Educational, reasonable sense, sobriety and literary decency was omitted and I made it purely local from start to finish and raked everybody fore and aft and up the back including the professors, trustees, village merchants to the ringer of the Chapel bell.

It commenced something like this: "The Nautilus, 135th volume, 1st week: Winter Term, 1873, No. 45, C. H. C. Motto: 'Hew to the line regardless of chips and nails, etc.' I was there to read it and scored a great hit as I then thought. I've seen this 'paper' with a few years ago. I was surprised that such a foolishly, lurid, abusive, senseless sheet could have passed the censorship of the faculty—which it evidently did—as all such literature was reviewed by some teacher at that time.

Only a portion of the grass in the Perham meadows, Woodstock, Me., was cut this year. It looked like shiftless farming and more so when you read the sign at the junction of the roads: "This farm for sale. Apply to J. Hastings Bean, So. Paris."

The sign was recently taken in for winter, but the grass is out in cold and telling a tale, perhaps of shiftlessness, high water and an over crowded barn. Who knows?

Meredith Center, N. H., is $3.2 miles from Norway, Maine, which is the hub of my planetary system. The direct route is Bridgton, Fryeburg, Conway Corner, N. H., West Ossipee, Center Harbor and Meredith.

I tell this as the sheriff and others are talking of calling on me and I want to make them as little trouble as possible. Reasonable running time is four and one half hours.

New Hampshire, I understand, has no road speed limit like Maine. Here you can "hit her up" to go 90 miles a minute or more in the rural districts without breaking statute law. You are, however, supposed to pay for chickens, cows and telephone poles that get in the way.

This is more sensible than a limit of speed observed by no one with sufficient engine power to break it. Maine says 25 miles and you hear people publicly talk of driving 40 and more miles per hour. We have too many unenforced, fool laws!

I did not call on Ned Hastings at Fryeburg, notwithstanding. I told him I would when next I went through his town. I learn he is much given to inaccurate use of firearms this fall and is kept at Bayou Buff Camps on the Saco waiting for the incoming of ducks.

His son, Hugh Warren Hastings, attends to the law practice and is building up a good business in his father's absence.

The cedar tree which for many years marked the entrance to the Fryeburg town clerk's office, is gone. So has Thomas S. McIntire. Where, I cannot say. Who knows?

Conway, N. H., reaches out with both arms to hug the stranger and squeeze sheldons from his pockets! They have a beautiful library building and a town clock, but no hotel. I'm speaking of "Shattagee." The famous Conway House went up in flame and smoke some years ago and like "The Oxford" in Fryeburg, lives only in memory.

JOYS OF NEWSPAPER WORK TOLD BY DON C. SEITZ

"Parent of Yellow Journalism" Began Work in Norway, Me.

The joys of being a newspaperman, once experienced are not easily explained. To Don C. Seitz of the New York World is given the power to explain his book, "Training for the Newspaper Trade."

In a score of different ways he not only answers the question as to fitness, which many a young man faces, but also satisfies the growing demand on the part of the public for a closer knowledge of the methods of newspaper management.

Mr. Seitz knows a thing or two about the newspaper business. He got his start while learning the printer's trade under Simeon Drake in the old Advertiser office in Norway, Maine.

As printer's "devil" he found loafing part of his job. Bidden by Mr. Drake to get busy and dig out some items, the boy discovered that fellow townsman had a stalk of Southern corn 13 feet high, and after much travail he wrote it up thus: "Granville Reed had a stalk of Southern corn in his garden thirteen feet high."

Therein lay his first lesson. Mr. Drake, criticized, philosophized, dissected and reconstructed until he had written a complete and much more complimentary paragraph. Then he added:

"You will notice that I have cut out the word 'Southern' before 'corn.' Southern corn ought to be thirteen feet high."

Describing Reporter's Life

This incident, while illustrating trite-ly the news sense that a reporter must have, also indicates the manner in which many a newspaperman has started work.

Perhaps that is why the author, early in his book, that "The boy who has a mind for journalism should learn to finger type or feed a press if he really wishes to reach the top."

Yet on another page, for the man who wants to become a reporter and has not had the chance, he gives this advice:

"About the best way is to hang around until the city editor is able to 'see you, or until you are convinced that he can't. Bring in an item, is the best introduction. A newspaper office is a place of chance. Being on the spot is the surest way to secure consideration."

Mr. Seitz, agreeable picture of the newspaperman's vagrant fortunes, of the "deep involvement in public affairs," which his work affords and of the pleasant uncertainty of his task can perhaps be no better epitomized than by a paragraph describing the reporter's life in part, as follows:

Full Grown or Not at All

"He reaches his task full grown or not at all. True, he can find lodgment in certain lines of mediocrity, but if he has it in him to be a reporter of merit, the fact is soon revealed and at once rewarded."

"But as it is a form of precocity, the end comes sooner than in other lines. For being a reporter is eminently a young man's job. He is always on assignments. Home ties are scant and friends few. He must ever be alert and at the ready."

"One assignment rule until it is supplanted by another. 'He has no hours, but must be ready on call. The dailies grant each man his day off, but it is often intruded upon, and the sense of responsibility is always with him."

"He must learn to write accurately without revision, and think ahead of his pen. His personality is ordinarily hidden, though most newspapers now make known the men who do unusual things."

"Good writing," he says at another point, "has gone out of fashion in our mile-a-minute age. There is no place in journalism today for the leisurely, reflective writer, carefully cultivating style. Speed governs. The newspaper is made up to the minute."

And again, speaking of Benjamin Franklin:

"Franklin read widely and thought deeply. These are prerequisites for a truly successful journalist, who must possess knowledge far beyond that furnished by scanning the day's events. Like a good horse, he must have 'bottom.'"

Problems and Policies

Mr. Seitz' book is not alone an exposition of conditions in the news-gathering field, but delves also into the problems and policies of every other department of a paper. In his discussion of a great newspaper truths the following paragraph stands out:

"A demagogic propaganda now and then starts out with cries against the 'capitalistic press,' when there can be no such thing, by the very nature of the business. One newspaper cannot hide what another prints and remain fair in the public eye."

"More than once have 'interests' tried to bolster up a waning sheet, only to complete its doom. A successful newspaper creates its own capital; no 'capital' as such can save an unsuccessful one. A newspaper with money and no soul is a foredoomed failure."

And again, after referring to the success of newspapers of the independent Democratic type, he continues:

"Men have broken into the newspaper world who had no thought of business or money making, who felt they had a message to expound or a cause to create, and so have founded great journals. Few newspapers ever began as calculating gettters of money and few could survive if this was their sole intent."

No Room for Deception

As to editorial opinion, he remarks:

"They who plead for a return to the one-man view and deride the 'irresponsible' press, 'hiding behind anonymity' and urge the signing of editorial articles with the best of motives, are wrong, if they desire the real forces of opinion to operate. The view of one man so revealed is nothing more in effect than the view of another, except for the wider expression attained through the printed page."

Mr. Seitz avers that there has never been such a disassociation of the press and politics as prevails in America at the present time, and to the occasional cynic who puts no faith in the newspapers he replies:

"The silly idea that a crowded sheet can spare the room for idle deception, or that its conductors are foolish enough to believe that invention is more important than facts, obtains in some higher intellectual circles among men whose learning should teach them to know better. That they do not is a reflection on them, not on the hurried, zealous newspaper diligently endeavoring to be first with its wares."

The author's defense of huge headlines, red ink and large pictures, criticized by some, is striking.

"Most minds are rudimentary," he points out, and where there is a foreign element a few large words with a picture expresses far more than much printed matter. An analogy is drawn from the old school primers. "As for red," he adds, "it is the most popular of colors."

Worms Sap Children's Health

Mothers often wonder why their children are not rugged and hardy. In a vast number of cases the trouble is—Worms.

Signs of worms are: Deranged stomach, swollen upper lip, sour stomach, offensive breath, hard and full belly with occasional gripings and pains about the navel, pale face of leaden hue, thin, eyes, heavy and dull, twitching eyelids, itching of the nose, itching of the rectum, short, dry cough, grinding of the teeth, little red points sticking out on tongue, starting during sleep, slow fever.

Dr. True's Elixir, the 60 years' time-tried Family Laxative and Worm Expeller, will expel the worms and restore the vim and vigor to your child. No better Laxative made for young or old. Mr. Horace Cheney of Belmont, Maine, reports that he buys 12 large bottles at a time. $50, 50c and $1.00 at all dealers. Advice free. Special treatment for tapeworms. Send for book. Write to me.

and strikes the eye as does no other."

"Some of the publications most lurid in headlines have a very meek assemblage of reading matter and a high moral tone in thought," he argues.

The Famous Yellow Kid

In this connection Mr. Seitz tells the history of the beginning of "yellow" journalism. He was the inventor of the Sunday comic sheet, and so regards himself as the "parent of yellow journalism."

His first introduction of a color comic in the New York World years ago jumped the circulation from the 250,000 to the 500,000 class.

The yellow phase was the outgrowth of a complaint by William J. Kelly, a color pressman, that he could get no results from wishy-washy tints and wanted solid colors. At the time R. F. Outcault had turned into the Sunday editor, then Arthur Brisbane, several black-and-white drawings showing scenes of child life in the tenements, under the title, "Hogan's Alley."

C. W. Saalburg, the colorist, on the spur of the moment made the child's dress solid yellow, with the result that the "yellow kid" became famous and its discoverer rich.

Mr. Seitz' book is burdened with anecdotes as interesting to the newspaperman as to the outsider, such as those of Gen. James Watson Webb of the Courier and Enquirer and James Gordon Bennett of the New York Herald, whose personal warfare involved assaults by Webb, of which Mr. Bennett always gave a full account in his paper.

The author closes with a discussion of the country paper and a series of valuable injunctions to country editors.

Worth Careful Thought

Do you read the label to know whether your baking powder is made from cream of tartar or, on the other hand, from alum or phosphate?

Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes, and adds to the food only wholesome qualities.

Other baking powders contain alum or phosphate, both of mineral origin, and used as substitutes for cream of tartar because of their cheapness.

Never sacrifice quality and healthfulness for low price.

Annual Sale

The annual sale and entertainment given by the ladies' aid of M. E. church, was a very successful affair. Home made food and candy found a ready sale, also ice cream and fancy articles, aprons and quilts.

They had two booths prettily arranged on either side of the hall. The fancy articles and aprons were decorated in white and pine tree branches. The other in yellow and black paper, jack o'lanterns with the attendant dressed like a witch with tall pointed black hat representative of Halloween where the food and candy was sold.

The evening's entertainment was a Mock Trial. Laforest Thomas acted as judge, John Brock, clerk; Rev. L. W. Grundy, lawyer for the plaintiff; Harry Patch, lawyer for the defendant; J. W. Cummings as sheriff Slow Poke and the case was a assault with intent to kill Neighborhood Nuisance Brock, otherwise Nathan Brock, against Hateful Childish Lane, otherwise Chester Lane, Jr. Witnesses for plaintiff, Miss Prude, an old maid school teacher, Mrs. Grundy; for defendant, Mrs. E. D. Curtis, a neighbor, and Mrs. J. W. Cummings, Irish house maid.

The twelve juror were chosen from numbers distributed among the men in the audience and a good deal of merriment was caused by the surprise to them not knowing what was coming. The whole affair was very enjoyable because of the very ridiculousness and resemblance of a real trial. The make ups were funny and the oratorical effect of the pleas by the lawyers. The moderation of Sheriff Slow Poke, the stubbornness of the prisoner, Neighborhood Nuisance Brock and the childishness of Little Chester Lane were very well taken as was also each of all the rest of the characters.

Several instrumental selections were given by Mr. Harmon and Miss Davis from Bethel.

The school sociable Monday evening was very enjoyable, a Halloween affair with games fitting to the occasion. A short musical program was given consisting of instrumental and vocal music which was enjoyed by the older people.
